

The present invention relates to a mechanical device allowing to make different exercises on the ground, and adjustable according to user's needs.

The present invention relates to a mechanical device allowing to make different exercises on the ground, and adjustable according to user's needs.